

THE UNCONVENTIONAL COACH

I am not your average coach. There are many coaches out there, and just like any relationship you need to click with your coach. If you are looking for a no-nonsense approach and you are good being pushed (kindly!) and a direct style of communication, I could be the coach for you. Either in-person or over Zoom (geography depending) your coaching sessions are geared around you.

As a businessperson for more than 20+ years, I've worked in the Corporate world - initially in the Advertising Industry where I became a VP Client Services, and after that as a facilitator of learning, usually around 'soft' skills'. I've worked with people from all types of industries and from all over the globe. I am passionate about helping you find out what motivates you and what type of careers would suit you best. As a master trainer of the Thomas North America suite of psychometric assessments, your coaching can include the insight and deep-dive into self-awareness that only a psychometric assessment can bring.

Regardless of industry and where you are at with your career, there often comes a point where you are stuck and you're not sure why. I can help you get unstuck – to realise either you're on the right career path or you're barking up the wrong tree

